

Dear Colleague,

You are invited to attend a free networking breakfast meeting with other professional peers from organizations with an interest in career development to learn about some exciting initiatives, programs and services from CERIC that will be of value to you.

The meeting will be held:
Thursday April 26, 2018
8:30 am – 10:30 am
Toronto, ON

CERIC is a charitable organization that aims to increase the economic and social well-being of Canadians. Our priorities are to:

- invest in an ambitious research and learning agenda that, through encouraging thought leadership, advances the career development field and builds its knowledge and skill base;
- champion and enable inclusive, multi-sectoral communication and collaboration with career development stakeholders; and
- facilitate conversations between career practitioners and their constituents and communities to raise the profile of the career development field.

This event, part of our Canada-wide road show, is an inclusive event and we want to hear from all who are involved in career development in the broadest sense, including K-12, post-secondary, community agencies, workforce planning, research, career coaching, employers and government. Our goal is for you to:

- discover and discuss new research, education and resources from CERIC that will provide findings and insights to support and enhance your work;
- participate in a two-way dialogue around what some of the needs/gaps are in terms of career development and how CERIC can help in addressing these; and
- build your network of local individuals and organizations that are engaged in different facets of career development.

For more information on CERIC, visit our website www.ceric.ca. Seating is limited, so please confirm your attendance at the breakfast meeting as soon as possible. Feel free to extend the invitation to others in your organization or network who could also benefit from joining us.
